One of the guests at the Eldridge House, in Lawrence, Kansas, gives an account of the robbery of the boarders at the house, who were all marched out of their rooms and arranged in the hall: "Presently a bushwhacker came up the stairs, paused upon the landing, and looked us over. towr To some old acquaintances he spoke ly enough, and with two or three shook hands, assuring us that we were entirely safe, and should receive complete protection from personal violence. Quantrell would pass anywhere for a well-looking man, and exhibits in his countenance no traces of native ferocity. He is of medium height, well built, and very quiet and even deliberate in speech and motion. His hair is brown, his complexion fresh, and his cunning but pleasant blue eyes and acquiline nose give to his countenance its chief expression. During the few moments which he spent with us at this time he conversed freely about himself and the present expedition, receiving with marked complacency some compliments on the completeness of his present success, and not hesitating to express his consciousness that it was by far the greatest of his exploits. He desired especially to know whether Gov. Carney was in the city, and finally left us, taking with him one of our party to guide some of his men whom he was about to send in search of Jim Lane"

Lord Clyde, better known as Sir Colin Campbell, entered the British army when a mere boy, as an Ensign, served under Sir John Moore in Portugal, and under the Duke of Wellington in Spain. In the Russian war his name became prominent as a leader of the Highland brigade at the battle of the Alma, and for his splendid repulse of the Russian cavalry at the battic of Balaclava. He was appointed commander-in-chief of the British army in India, and it was here he achieved the triumph of his military life by the skill and daring with which he suppre sed the great Sepov rebellion. For this h. was raised to to the Peerage with the title of Lord Clyde, and a few months before his death the was appointed a Field Marshal.

The report from Richmond that the rebel privateer Georgia had sunk the Vanderbilt is discredited by the New York Post, which says if such an action had taken place, with such results, the world would have known it long ago, by a flourish of trumpets from the numerous rebels and sympathizers who are found in the West Indies. Moreover, the Vanderbilt was so strongly built that she could not well be sunk by a broadside; she was too swift to be taken at disadvantage by the Georgia, a vessel of inferior speed. THE CAPTURE OF NENA SAIB.—The news received by the last mail from India contains an incident which will be received by all Eng-land with stern but legitimate satisfaction. It is stated so positively as to be almost beyond doubt, that Nena Saib, of Bithoor, the perpetrator of the massacres of Cawnpore, has been captured at Ajmere, in the Rajpootana country, and is now a prisoner awaiting his trial. Although there seems sometimes a strange difficulty in recognizing these Asiatics, par-ticularly after a lapse of time, Nena Saib must be so well known a man that we can hardly believe that a mistake has been made. It might be possible to hang a pseudo Tan-ia Topee, since that daring warrior suddenly appeared in the field and was personally un-known to his captors. But Nena Saib, the master of Bithoor, the adopted son of the ex-Peishwah of Poonab, the persevering litigant against the East India Company for the con-tinuance of his adopter's pension, and in form-er days the guest and host of many Englishmen, is a person whose identity it must be possible to establish beyond a doubt. At any rate, of this we may be sure—that at the present time of profound quiet care will be duly taken to make no mistake, and that a wrong man will not suffer in the place of one whose face must be well known to hundreds.

Assuming, then, that this man is really Nena Saib, his career, as described by the Indian press, is most extraordinary. It appears that, instead of being a fugitive in the king-dom of Nepaul, or wearing out a life of obom of Nepaul, or wearing out a life of obscurity and misery in some plebeian disguise, he has been intriguing in various parts of India, is in possession of large sums of money, and has been harbored by persons who are his friends, if not his accomplices. He has been, it is said, a guest of the Rajah of Bikaneer, and has even ventured to Poonah, thus dering the full power of the British Coverns. daring the full power of the British Govern-ment. What his designs have been must be a mystery, for who can penetrate motives of men who unite the most elaborate cunning and restless energy of purpose with profound ignorance, and ideas of politics and war which are like the fancies of a madman?

In the six years' wanderings, which are said to have blanched his outlawed head, Nena Saib has no doubt been continually urged forward by the belief that it is possible to renew the work which tailed in 1857, and by a second A men whose whole life has been passed in brooding over supposed wrongs, and has for a few weeks tasted the sweets of revenge, only to be driven afterward into exile or conceal-meant, is not likely to settle down as a contented refugee, even though he may have saved enough from the wreck of his fortune to place him above poverty. Although six years hav passed, and that tale of Cawnpore has been so often told that nothing new can be added, it is impossible to call to mind that event without feeling that for mournfulness and horror it stands alone in British history. n British history. The Black Hole of Calcutta is nothing compared with the massact the river and around Cawnpore. It is pos. ble that the former crime was not premedita-ted, and that the miserable Prince who expiated it with his life did not intend to put an English community to death by suffocation. But the atrocities of Nena Saib were wilful, and treachery.

It is probable that he seduced the Cawnpore regiments to mutiny; it is certain that immediately on their mutiny he took command of them, and kept it till he was driven from Cawapore and Bithoor by the handful of Enish under General Havelock. For a fortish, and when, in the latter part of June, he ance, he had recourse to the vilest treachery. Employing as his agenta man named Azimoo-la, a Mahomedan, whom many people will remember as his agent in London, and who, at the time of the Crimean disasters, conceived the idea that the last hour of England had come, Nena Saib treated with the garrison merely to get them in his power. scruple to order the massacre on the 26th of June, when the able-bodied men of the garri-son were murdered in the boats to which they had been enticed, by the solemn assurance that they were to proceed unmolested to Allabahad. That this massacre was deliberately planned by Nena Saib and Azimoolah, his confidant, there can be no kind of doubt; for nct only did he do nothing to prevent it, but a few days after he issued the well known proclish. Nor is the still more heinous massacre of the women and children, after his defeat

It is positively testified that the order came from the Nena, who immediately, on the completion of the massacre, retreated to Bithoor. Of this second crime we can hardly bring ourselves to speak. The wounds inflicted on so many families are still fresh, even after the lapse of six years. The incidents are such that the friends have suffered, and still suffer, far more than is the common lot of surviving relose engaged in the commission of it are ought to justice, the remembrance of it ald be blotted out. But dreadful as was the rime, it cannot be imputed to any sudden mpulse of a defeated soldiery. All the cir-cumstances show that it was the deliberate work of Nena Saib himself, who thus filled up the measure of his guilt.

On the contrary, what a pitiable condition is that of the Kentucky soldier in the rebel army. Let me tell you. At the battle of Stone River, Breckinridge's command, consisting entirely of Kentuckians, was ordered to the front where their desprease valor had wall General Davidson, with artillery and cavalry numbering about 8,000 men, moved from Brownsville and on the 27th met the picket of the enemy at a place on Bayou Meteor known as "Bayou Meteor Bridge." The force of rebels was estimated at about 7,000, posted on an eminence quite difficult of access, which commanded the main road to the bridge over which Gen. Davidson intended to move. I was soon apparent to Gen. Davidson, that, in order to gain that point, the enemy must first be dislodged from his position.

Heavy skirmishing continued till toward night, when both armies ceased firing. The casualties, owing to the distance between the threatening armies, were light. Our loss in killed and wounded did not exceed twenty five men. During the night Gen. Davidso placed his guns in position and early on the morning of the 28th they commenced their tuckians in a mass to their dear old State. Is it not a hard fate for the young men who have perilled their lives in defence of the ac-cursed Confederacy to be scorned by those whom they sacrificed their homes and their honors to help build up? Yet such work of destruction. It took but a few rounds to satisfy the rebel General commanding of the futility of attempting to hold his position. Our boys poured grape and shell among the rebels with such impetuosity that, before the middle of the day, they commenced falling back, and before sunset not a butternut sollier, save prisoners, was on the north or east els had gained the opposite side the torch was put to the bridge, and it was soon consumed. The Gueri la Raid in Southern Kentucky. Rebel Force Overstated,

Much nuessiness has been manifested in the last two or three days because of a rumor that a rebel guerilla raid was being meditated upon Southern Kentucky. Capt. Austin, of Jimtown, Ky., was captured by a band of guerillas under the leadership of Col. Hamilton and Capt. Hughes, who are reported to be of the rebel army. He subsequently made his escape from their clutches, and gives some detailed and interesting facts in regard to the enemy's plans and designs, together with a statement of their numbers. He says that the gang are composed in the greater part of disaffected deserters from the rebel army. The affected deserters from the repet army. In the night time they cross over on this side and go into the interior of this State, robbing, burning, stealing, and arresting Union citizens. They claim to belong to the rebel army, but the evidence received indicates that only their leaders belong to it. The others are made up as stated above. After doing their netarious business, and collecting all the stolen goods and forage they can carry, they recross the river and scatter, coming together again at their rendezvous on the other side, to make another raid when an auspicious season presents itself. Col. Harney, of the Thirty-fourth Kentucky, near Glasgow, reports their force at four hundred, but as Captain Austin was with them a sufficient length of time to estimate their numbers, and being a gentleman of intelligence and unmistakable veracity, we conclude that Colonel Harney's estimate is too large. His information is derived from citizens and deserters, probably, which is not always trustworthy. The proper steps have been taken to get rid After hanging half an hour they were taken down and buried in the contraband cemetery.

THE CLAIM ON CHILI.—A letter dated at. Valparaiso on the 17th ultimo says: "The lecision of the King of Belgium on the claim of the United States Government against that of Chili for seizures of American property in 1821, in Peru, has just been received, He decides that Chili should pay three-lifths of the amount then seized, the proportion belonging $42,000, and with interest, to be counted from 1841 to 1848, at six per cent, will come to upwards of $60,000. Report says that this Government has already informed Mr. Nelson, the American Minister, that the money is ready, subject to his orders."

A SKIRMISH .- The Maysville Eagle learns that there was recently a skirmish near Catlettsburg between rebel guerillas and a party of Home Guards, the result of which we have not ascertained. It is said that Mr. Wilson, County Court Clerk of Lewis, was shot dead, and another young man from the same county was badly wounded. Young Wilson was an exemplary citizen, a staunch Union man, and his death will be seriously felt by his relations and the county at large. He was deservedly popular among the people of Lewis, who properly appreciated his worth.

HEADQ'RS DETACHM'T GREEN RIVER BRIDGE, The noted guerilla, Hamilton, with sixty men, entered and robbed a store at Marrowbone of over one thousand dollars' worth of goods on the 5d inst. They were seen dividing their plunder yesterday at Ash Bottoms. They are reported eight miles this side of

THE EMPLOYMENT OF NEGRO TROOPS .- Fifty negroes, mostly stolen from neighboring plantations, among whom were ten recognized as the property of Judge McGehee, were capnred after the action. The disposition of in their hands, in actual rebellion against their masters, by which overt acts, according to the laws of the State, they had forfeived their lives, is the subject of much outside con-jecture and speculation. The general impres-sion is, that Colonel Logan should have dealt with them summarily, hanging them to the first tree, or shooting them sans ceremonie, that their fate might be a warning and exam-ple to others. The law of se defendendo, that his neighbor's house, which is in flames, to save his own, would clearly justify the speedy execution of these slaves, that the terrible evil of insurrection and of banding with the enemy might be effectually checked.

England carried out this extreme penalty—

ceilent effect; and France and Spain have re-peatedly and successfully tested its efficacy among their colonial insurrectionary blacks. The peculiar position which we occupy relatively to our barbarian enemy, who deny us now even the bare right of belligerents, proclaiming that we are "rebels" and have no rights, and who, by the proclamation of their President, take the natural, absurd, and un-tenable ground that we must respect as pristenable ground that we must respect as prisoners of war, and regularly exchange, even our very slaves whom they have stolen from us and armed, inciting them to insurrection, even sgainst the Constitution and laws of the United States, and proclaiming that they will retaliate, man for man—a white man for a black—in whatever punishment we see fit to black—in whatever punishment we see fit to it flict upon our own slaves recaptured from them, might, perhaps, compel us to take the initiative, and by the summary execution of these fifty negro assassins, dare them to take the step which will bring upon the Government and the people of the United States the condemnation and detestation of mankind, while it would lift the South to a pitch of the control of th while it would not be sound to a pict of united hatred and enthusiasm against the North that would secure our independence in three months thereafter. But it is said, with what degree of veracity I am unable to decide, that Colonel Logan has taken the entire relittle place called Centreville, twenty miles from Jackson, La. It is said also that prior to Crittenden's corps, we learn, crossed the Tennessee river on Wednesday, September the 2d, and moved towards Raccoon Hill. Lewis B. Nelson, a prominent lawyer

MOUNTED INFANTRY RECRUITING. GLASGOW, KY., Sept. 5, 1863. Allow me, through your columns, to say to the public that Samuel Martin, late Captain of the 5th Kentucky cavalry, is now recruiting a regiment of mounted infantry for twelve months' service. His camp is at this place. He has already enlisted 350 men, who are fine the bas already enlisted 350 men, who are fine the bas already enlisted 350 men, who are fine to the follows and have valunteered no doubt, with a determination to rid the border of the guerilla bands of rebels who are steal ing, burning, and murdering. These recruit are drilling every day. I witnessed one o their drills a tew days ago, and was surprised to see them perform half so well as they did. They all appear eager for active service, and have the utmost confidence in the military skill of Capt. Martin. He manages his men well, and they already appear like old soldiers; they are the right men to use against the rebels who are infesting the southern border of Kentucky. They are well acquainted with the geography of the country; also with the history of the rebel citizens, and know exactly when and where to take hold. Their services are highly appreciated by the military authorities at this place. Captain Martin now has a Major's command, and I learn that his men have not been mustered into the service; neither have they been furnished with horses or arms. I think the authorities at Frankfort should see to this immediately, and have Capt. Martin's men mustered into the service, o see them perform half so well as they die Capt, Martin's men mustered into the serv tucky infantry, has been commanding the troops at this place. Cel. Ideas of dashing precipitately and madly upon such land and water defences as the experiences of this war have taught the rebels to establish have been exploded at pretty serious cost to us. Of course Mobile, having long been in expectation of the trial to which she is to be subjected, has made preparation for it by the utmost possible accumulation of provisions and ammunition.

temper of those who have advised caution and a prudent delay in the establishment of an Exchange. They have been the most active and zealous in the reorganization of the Board of Trade, and have pledged themselves to its support, independently of the subscription money of members, should it become requisite to make advances. They agree with our correspondent in spirit, but they feel that another fiasco would be a stigma upon our city from which she would not recover in many years. They have said that if the majority desires the Daily Exchange, they will pledge themselves to punctual attendance and to the most liberal subscription for its support.

The question is not one of policy, but of time. We have never heard an argument against the establishment of a Daily Dxchange; the only subject of discussion has been the proper time for its commencement. The members of the Board of Trade have had several weeks for deliberation; they should all go to tion toward the snowy goblet. Surely this the meeting this evening with their minds made up as to the way they will vote. There is no need for further argument; everything that the most enlightened minds in the Board could suggest has already been heard. Let the matter be determined then by a vote, and we feel convinced that the action of the majority will be prudent, and if it is decided to starta Daily Exchange, we pledge our most earnest exertions to render it useful, pleasant, and permanent by keeping full record of its sayings and doings before the public and by adopting the quotations of the Exchange books as the governing prices in our market reports.

the cause of truth to speak with admiration of the course which has been pursued during ublous times by our contemporary, the National Intelligencer, at Washington. Such a paper, at headquarters, is instrumental for good in a thousand ways, and deserves the upport of conservative men of all parties.
We do not always agree with the Intelligencer in politics, but we honor it in its opinions when we do not hold the same. We heard with some apprehension that the loss of its large Southern circulation had seriously crip-pled the resources of the paper, but we trust that this loss has been or will be more than made up by Northern support, and that the time will speedily come when the Editors may, as formerly, give wise counsels from the seat of government to both North and South. per which ought to be sustained in Washington for the sake of the country, and the principles on which the nation stands, and which that paper faithfully defends.

N. Y. Jour. of Commerce.

We very cordially second this commendation. It is simply just. The National Intelligencer has done and is doing excellent service in the cause of conservatism, as is attested especially by the charge of copperheadism | look at the great cataract, and, after gazing and of disloyalty so freely hurled against the at it a moment with an air as if thinking venerable journal by the hot champions of how he could best "appropriate it to his own radicalism. Intelligencer has been steadily exerted in behalf of the true interests of the country. "Such a paper at headquarters", as the Journal of Commerce says, "is instrumental for good in a thousand ways, and deserves the support of conservative men of all parties." We sincerely hope it will receive such support.

The papers call John Morrissey, the boxer, highly patriotic because, on being drafted, he instructed his banker to give $5,000 for a substitute. There was more vanity than patriotism in the matter. If he wanted to serve his country he might have given $300 for a substitute and expended the remaining part of his $5,000 in hiring twelve or fifteen volunteers. He might have reflected that a man who needs the inducement of $5,000 to become a substitute isn't likely to do any fighting worth a fiftieth part of the money. We think that such a one would be likely to run away after pocketing the cash.

A rebel needn't be ashamed of inability to pay his debts. What he calls his "country" is hopelessly insolvent, and what right has he to be better off than his country?

The Louisville Journal is showing what is very marvellous, indeed, that the Democrat held that the President has a right to arrest men and hold them too. The Democrat does not deny the right now; nor do we hold that bey law or resist its authority.

The point now before this country is the enormous abuse of this power of arrest, and the abuse of the power to interfere with the freedom of speech and of the press.

MUNICIPAL HEALTH DEPARTMENT.—It will prise many persons to learn that Louisville actually has a Health Department, and that ordinances stand on the record to establish and regulate a Board of Health, to abate nuisances, prevent impurities in cellars and putrid matter on lots, and to fine persons for skinning carcasses without notifying the Street Inspector. These are all about as dead as the edicts of the Pharaohs, and if their at Green & Green's. framers intended them to be invalid, they could not have gone to work with greater judgment. By Ordinance No. 121, approved September 18, 1859, "a permanent Board of Health is established, consisting of the Fellows of the College of Physicians and Surgeons of the city of Louisville, to serve without compensation." To this Board all the sanitary management of the city was entrusted, and it was empowered to enforce the observance of all ordinances for the preservation of the public health. The city charter gives the General Council power to elect a Board of Health annually; constitutes the Mayor, the Physicians of the Eastern and Western Districts and the Street Inspectors, health officers, and at the discretion of the Council they may compose the Board of Health, with a clerk on salary, &c. It is evident therefore that the city can be placed under proper sanitary regulations, and the public demand is loud for immediate action. We have repeatedly referred to intolerable nuisances which have not yet been abated and it seems to be nobody's business to attend to the abatement. All the inhabitants of that section of the city within stenching distance of Oakland, are now suffering from the carcasses of dead mules and horses, which are skinned in the open lots and left to poison the air with their effluvia. The windows in that region after nightfall have to be closed, and the people are compelled to burn coffee and disinfectants to procure a night's repose. This is shameful trifling with the health of the city, and makes the whole sanitary system of the city a farce. We again call upon the Councils to redeem the character of Louisville, and render it a fit place for people to live in from one extreme of its limits to the other. Third street, from Jefferson to Market, and Fourth street, from Green to Walnut, are reeking with stench, and have been so all the summer. Do let the horrid nuisances be abated.

WOOD'S THEATRE-THE BOHEMIAN GIBL.s opera was a great success, the house being crowded and enthusiastic. Miss Sallie is , really extraordinary as a vocalist, and was complimented by a recall after the opera, as well as being literally bombarded with bouquets. Master Alfred, as the Gipsy Devilshoof, sustained the absorbing dramatic interest of the piece in the most creditable manner. John was good, and Benjamin very acceptable as the fop. The Gipsy Queen is a very careful young actress and will make her mark. Our pet little Julia was, as usual, charming, and in the farce gave us the perfection of Yankee gals. To-night the Bohemian Girl is re-

In our notice of the public schools this morning, we omitted to mention the city school in the Sixth Ward, located on Sixth street, between Main and Water, and which has been under the care of the Board of School Trustees for several years. As many children in the neighborhood may conclude that said school does not now exist, a correction of the omission is eminently proper. This school is in a flourishing condition.

Sib: I was a private in Co. F, 17th Regiment, New York Vols. While at Harrison's Landing, and on the Rappehannock near Falmouth, I and many of the empany were sick with bilious diarrhoea. The Army Surgeon did not cure us, and I was reduced to skin and bone. Among the company were quite a number of members who had worked in your Laboratory at Sing Sing. They were not sick because they used Brandreth's Pills. These men prevailed upon me and others to use the Pills, and we were all cured in from two to five days. After this our boys used Brandrath's Pills for the typhus fever, colds, rheumatism, and in no case did they fail to restore health.

BOARD OF TRADE BOARD OF TRADE.

There will be a meeting to-night of the "Board of Trade," at the Mechanics' Library rooms, for the purpose of effecting arrangements for daily meetings, and we beg to call the attention of all business men who are interested in the prosperity and dignity of our city to the necessity of concert of action in this matter. We are surprised and mortified at the want of zeal in the establishment upon a perment basis of this much needed organa permanent basis of this much needed organ.

It says little for our business energy that a city of 70,000 people should have no Merchants' Exchange. No Chamber of Commerce, where strangers in our city can go daily and witness the traffic. She will touch at Port Royal, Key West, and all of Admiral Bailey's stations at Pensacola, but goes no daily meetings of this Board has several times been postponed, many of our merchants now oppose it upon the ground that the business will not justify it. This is a great mistake. When our merchants are comparatively idle is the time, of all others, that this should be urged; so that by the time business opens with full swing the organization will be upon a firm footing and available. If we wait for the tide of business Gen. Office of Quartermaster General for the State of Kentucky,

FRANKFORT, July 16, 1863.

THE NUMBER OF CLAIMS AGAINST THE Government of the United States heretofore sent me for collection, which I have been forced to return, being so great, and believing that my position will enable me to collect them at a much less expense to the holder than the discounts to which they have heretofore been compelled to submit, I have now concluded to employ in my office a competent person to addit and collect all such claims as may hereafter be sent me. All Quartermaster's vouchers, Commissary's certificates, Pay and Bounty due deceased soldiers, and claims of all kinds will receive prompt attention.

Arrangements will be made with Officers of the Government to secure prompt and speedy payment of such claims.

Knewing that I can thus benefit the citizens of my
